

Hello

Because you are a current medical student, you have been invited to participate in a study on your views about artificial intelligence (AI) in medical practice, specifically when it comes to AI prescribing pain medication. Participants in this study will be asked to complete a very brief survey on the topic. This survey should take less than five minutes to complete and is completely anonymous.

As medical students, you represent the future of medicine. As such, your voice is needed in the ongoing development of future medical technologies like AI.

If you would like to be a participant in this study, please click the survey link below.
